Highlights

Global	Risk sentiment took a hit as a Brexit poll taken for the Independent daily showed that as many as 55% are in favour of the UK leaving the EU, a 10 percentage points' lead over those who prefer to remain within the group. One year ago, the same poll showed the exact opposite sentiment. European markets took a blow as a result, with FTSE and DAX equity indices down 1.9% and 2.5% respectively, while the 10-year German bund tightened to 0.021%, an all-time low. The risk-off mood could be felt across the Atlantic as well, with a rally in US Treasuries and 0.7-0.9% drop in the major equity indices. For the day ahead, Asian market will likely start on the softer tone while awaiting China's industrial production data. Markets have pencilled in 6.0% growth for May, in line with the actual print from the previous month.
US	Caution prevailed amongst investors as funds were moved out of risky assets. Equity markets declined for the second straight day on Friday, erasing gains earlier in the week. Led by financials, the S&amp;P 500 fell 0.92%, Dow fell 0.67% and Nasdaq tumbled 1.29%. US Treasuries benefited from the risk-off sentiments, with yields sinking to their lowest since 2013. 2-year and 10-year US Treasury bonds yield 0.73% and 1.64% respectively. The yield curve has also flattened considerably. The yield spread between the 2-year and 30-year US Treasuries stand at 172 basis points, the lowest since 2008. Volatility also picked up considerably, with the VIX ending up 16.33%.
China	CNH dropped beyond 6.6 against the US dollar which interestingly did not indicate any disorder sell-off. Rather, the implied volatility of the CNH was much lower lately as compared to early this year. Given the weaker greenback as a result of decreased market expectations over a summer rate hikes, the downward pressure on the CNH may be attributed to the investors' cautiousness of the RMB amid May's mixed data out of China. Elsewhere, China's FDI increased 3.8% yoy over the first five months, with the high-tech sector being the most attractive sector to foreign investment.
Indonesia	Bisnis Indonesia reported that the tax amnesty bill will be discussed at parliament's plenary meeting, whereby it is said that the bill will be approved into law. So far, there has apparently been no agreement yet between the government and the parliament on redemption rates, with some parties reportedly seeking more than 10% tax rate.
FX insights	Ahead of the FOMC next week, we attempt to pre-empt any disappointment towards the Fed by engaging in a tactical short USD-JPY. With a spot ref at 107.16 on Friday, we target 103.85 and place a stop at 108.85. In SE Asian space, investors can also consider a similar short term bearish dollar view ahead of the FOMC via the USD-SGD. Despite some background volatility concerns that we harbour, we note that the SGD remains significantly reactive to broad dollar cues (relative to the NEER's basket constituents). From a spot ref of 1.3546 on Friday, we set a 1.3300 objective and place a stop at 1.3670.
Commodities	Risk aversion reigned on the last trading day of the week, with VIX rising to its highest since March 2016, with growth-related commodities taking a notch down. West Texas crude oil fell below its $50/bbl handle once again, with the decline aided by the increase in the number of US oil-rig counts for the second week. Base metals also fell across the board, while both the bullion and the greenback rose.

Major Market

- Singapore: The pioneer generation (aged 67 and above) will receive between $200 - $800 worth of Medisave top-ups, depending on the year they were born. According to the Ministry of Finance, this year's top-up will amount to about S$190 million.
- Meanwhile, the STI ended Friday's session down 21 points, settling at 2822.97 (-0.73%). The drag came mainly from Sembcorp Marine Ltd (-2.92%), Jardine Cycle & Carriage (-2.86%) and Genting Singapore PLC (-2.63%) with overall losses by the index being cushioned by Thai Beverage PCL, which managed to etch out 1.67% worth of gains. Looking ahead, expect the STI to stay rangebound as investors await this week's FOMC meeting. Resistance and support are tipped at 2860 and 2790 respectively.
- Macau: Thanks to the recent recovery in the tourism and gaming sectors as well as consistently low borrowing costs, more end-users buying low-end flats drove housing transaction volume up by 61.5% yoy to 1045 units. As a result, housing prices rose by 0.3% YTD in April. Nevertheless, the increased transaction volume did not translate into higher demand for new residential mortgage loans (RML), which dropped in 7 out of the past 8 months and was down by 35% yoy in April. Fears of steep increases in borrowing cost amid the Fed's tightening may be the main reason behind homebuyers' persistent cautiousness of mortgage loans. Moving forward, though increasing labour demand from new hotels and casinos will likely to attract more non-local residents to work in Macau, this group of labour tend to reside outside the city, providing little support to Macau's housing market. Slower wage growth is also expected to dent housing market demand. Coupled with increasing supply in coming 1-2 years, housing prices are expected to drop 10% yoy by end of this year.

Bond Market Updates

- Market Commentary: Caution prevailed amongst investors as funds were moved out of risky assets. Equity markets declined for the second straight day on Friday, erasing gains earlier in the week. Led by financials, the S&P 500 retreated 0.92%, Dow fell 0.67% and Nasdaq tumbled 1.29%. US Treasuries benefited from the risk-off sentiments, with yields sinking to their lowest since 2013. 2-year and 10-year US Treasury bonds yield 0.73% and 1.64% respectively. The yield curve has also flattened considerably. The yield spread between the 2-year and 30-year US Treasuries stand at 172 basis points, the lowest since 2008. Elsewhere, volatility picked up considerably, with the VIX ending up 16.33%.
- New Issues: Hua Han Health Industry Holdings Ltd. launched a USD150mn 3-year bond with final guidance at 7%. The bond is to be priced later today and is rated "BB-/Ba3/BB-".
- Rating Changes: Moody's affirmed its "A1" credit rating on Daiichi Sankyo Company Limited (Pharmaceuticals) and revised its outlook to negative from stable. The revision reflects Moody's expectation of a material decline in revenues and profits in FY2017 as a result of the loss of exclusivity of the Olmesartan family of products in the US the previous year. Moody's downgraded its senior secured rating on Newcastle Coal Infrastructure Group Pty Ltd. (NCIG) to "Ba1" from "Baa3". The downgrade follows NCIG's announcement of the deferral of its proposed refinancing and capital simplification transaction. S&P affirmed its "BBB" credit rating on Japan-based general trading and investment company (GTIC) Marubeni Corp. and removed the ratings from CreditWatch with negative implications. The outlook is negative.
