Global	US president Trump's nomination of Jerome Powell as new Fed chair was confirmed, but market focus was on the House GOP tax bill which is estimated to add US$1.49t to the deficit over a decade. Meanwhile, BOE hiked its key interest rate for the first time in a decade to 0.5% in a 7-2 vote, but maintained the asset purchase target at GBP435b and the corporate bond target at GBP10b. However, BOE governor Carney sounded cautious at the press conference, citing that "it isn't so much where inflation is now but where it's going that concerns us", which essentially reinforcing our "one hike and done" scenario. When asked if the rate hike might be a mistake, he responded that it was a "nimble response" and went on to flag that "those businesses in general are anticipating ultimately an agreement; they are not managing to the absence of an agreement" and "they're not managing to the absence of transition" for Brexit risks. GBP fell in response to the dovish hike theme. Another busy day ahead with China's Caixin and Asian services/composite PMIs, as well as US' Oct nonfarm payrolls (market consensus: 313k), unemployment rate (unchanged at 4.2%), average hourly earnings (0.2% mom and 2.7% yoy), Sep trade deficit, Sep factory orders and Sep durable goods.
SN	Initial jobless claims fell 5k to 229k, while Challenger job cuts fell 3% yoy. The 3Q17 nonfarm payrolls improved from 1.5% in 2Q to 3.0%, and unit labor cost also accelerated from 0.3% to 0.5% but generally remained tame.
CN	Caixin reported that China will allow a trial of full float of H-shares. Currently, the nonlisted "domestic shares" of Hong Kong listed mainland companies are not allowed to be sold in the secondary market or pledged as collateral for financing. The trial will remove those limits. Despite the supply of tradable shares is expected to increase, the full float is still positive for the market as it may align major domestic shareholder's interest with offshore retail investors. In addition, this may also serve a new funding channel for Hong Kong listed Chinese companies.
SG	S'pore's manufacturing PMI surged 0.6 points to 52.6 in Oct, the highest since Dec09 (53.3) and also marked the 14th straight month of expansion. The lift likely came from non-electronics sectors and reflects the broadening growth base for manufacturing firms. The new orders, new exports, output and inventory gauges all improved. The manufacturing employment gauge also rose for the second consecutive month to 50.7. This bodes well for 4Q17 manufacturing growth momentum. However, the electronics PMI retreated modestly by 0.3 points to 53.3 in Oct, dragged down new orders (55.7 versus 56.1), output (54.8 versus 55.0), inventory (52.8 versus 52.9) and imports (52.0 versus 52.1). That said, the Sep reading of 53.6 was the highest since July10 (55.7) and some moderation in momentum is to be anticipated going into the year-end. Post-Christmas season, electronics shipments are likely to wind down and traditionally 1Q is also traditionally a slower quarter compared to 4Q, so a temporary breather is to be anticipated. At current levels, the Oct print is still the healthiest since July 1, barring the Sep 17 reading. The growth base gets more challenging going into 2018 and manufacturing is tipped to moderate from a position of strength (our forecast: 10.6% yoy for the whole of 2017) back to a low single-digit growth pace for next year.

Major Market

- US: Equities were largely calm on Thursday, as the House Republicans' tax reform proposal came to light. Homebuilders were the main losers, due to concerns about mortgage interest reductions. Lack of details over revenue generation, and the expectation that the proposal will be heavily altered before being eventually passed meant that little excitement was generated. Overall, the S&P 500 was essentially flat, while the Dow rose 0.35%. The Nasdaq Composite closed marginally lower. VIX closed at 9.93, compared to 10.2 previously.
- Meanwhile, the US Treasuries advanced upon the release of the tax proposal, and Trump's nomination of Powell as the Fed Chair. The Treasury yield curve bull flattened from the long end, with the 10y benchmark falling 3 bps to 2.345%, while the 2y benchmark was lower by 1 bp to 1.61%. Attention shifts to nonfarm payrolls on Friday, but it would take a significant miss to shift rate hike expectations for December.
- Singapore: The STI fell 0.33% to close lower at 3380.50 yesterday. While overnight Wall Street and morning Kospi cues are positive, there may be temptation for investors to take some money off the table ahead of key US' nonfarm payrolls data tonight. STI support and resistance are tipped at 3360 and 3400 respectively. With UST bond yield curve bull-flattening overnight, SGS bonds are likely to trade with a firmer tone again.
- Hong Kong: Approved new mortgage loans exhibited the first year-on-year decline since July 2016 and were down for the third consecutive month on monthly basis in September 2017. During the same month, growth in secondary housing prices index decelerated to its lowest level in nine months and printed 14.8% yoy. Furthermore, housing transaction volume fell for the fourth consecutive month by 20% yoy to 5289 deals in October 2017. In contrast, housing market showed signs of improve investment sentiment recently as proposed supply under the "Starter Homes" scheme missed expectations while the new government refrained from carrying out more cooling measures. However, we hold onto our view that moderation in housing market growth will continue in the rest of 2017 due to the following reasons. First, prospects for higher interest rates may add to cooling measures in taming secondary housing demand. Second, increasing supply of subsidized flats may help to distract some demand for smaller flats from private housing market. Third, some less affluent home buyers may wait and see if increasing private home supply could take down housing prices. Fourth, curbed overseas investment of Mainland property developers has stopped residential land prices from surging. All in all, we expect secondary housing prices index to peak in October and come off a bit in the coming months. Nevertheless, the correction is likely to be capped by a still solid labour market as well as wealth effect from stock market.

Bond Market Updates

In the broader dollar space, the spread on JACI IG Corp rose 1bps to 177bps, while the yield on JACI HY Corp fell 1bps to 6.86%. 10Y UST yields fell 3bps to 2.35%, after details of the Republican tax bill emerged and US President Trump selected Jerome Powell to serve as the next Chairman of the Federal Reserve.

Moody's has affirmed Shenzhen Expressway Company Limited's (SZEC) 'Baa2' issuer rating and senior unsecured debt rating, while revising the outlook to positive from stable. The rating action reflects SZEC's strengthened financial profile which is supported by its toll road operations and resilience of its credit metrics against increased capital expenditure. Moody's has affirmed Emeco Holdings Limited's (Emeco) 'Caa1' corporate family rating as well as Emeco Pty Limited's 'Caa1' backed senior secured debt rating. The outlook has been revised to positive from stable. The rating action follows Emeco's announcement to acquire Force Equipment Pty Limited, which will be funded through a fully underwritten equity raising. The positive outlook also reflects Emeco's improving credit profile, and that the acquisition will increase Emeco's fleet size, earnings and diversification. Fitch has assigned KB Kookmin Card Co Ltd (KB Card) a Long-Term Issue Default Rating (IDR) of 'A-' and a support rating of '1'. The outlook is stable. The rating action reflects Fitch's view that KB Card's parent, KB Financial Group Inc, would provide support to KB Card if needed.
