

Highlights

Global	Geopolitical concerns came to the fore again over the weekend amid Friday night's strikes against Syria, and talk of fresh sanctions to be imposed on Russia in relation to Syria's reported use of chemical weapons. Wall Street slipped on Friday even though US bank earnings beat expectations, while oil prices climbed and the 2-10 year UST bond yield curve flattened to 45bps (tightest since Oct07). While the US-China trade tensions have taken a backseat for now, note that China is reportedly slowing reviews of M&amp;A deals by Qualcomm Inc and Bain Capital. Asian bourses may tread water today, awaiting further news. Today's economic data calendar comprises US' retail sales, Empire manufacturing, and Indonesia's trade data. For the week ahead, keep an eye on more US earnings results (including Goldman Sachs and Morgan Stanley), China's key economic data (including 1Q18 GDP growth), a Fed cacophony (with Williams, Bostic, Kaplan, Kashkari, Quarles, Harker, Evans, Dudley, Brainard and Mester on tap), Trump meeting Japanese PM Abe at Mar-a-Lago (possibly touching on trade and North Korea), BOC policy meeting (likely unchanged at 1.25%) on Wed, BI policy meeting on Thu (likely to be static at 4.25%), and the IMF-World Bank spring meetings (with the World Economic Outlook due 17 Apr).
US	The US Treasury's semi-annual FX report did not name any nation as a FX manipulator, but added India to the existing five nations (China, Japan, Switzerland, Korea and Germany) on the watchlist and cited "the increasingly non-market direction of China's economic development poses growing risks to its major trading partners and the long-term global growth outlook". Meanwhile, Fed's Rosengren (non-voter) warned that "we have to be vigilant to make sure we're not overstimulating the economy".
EZ	Spain's sovereign credit rating was raised one notch to Baa1 with a stable outlook by Moody's, citing that "much has been done to address the weaknesses in the banking sector that emerged during the financial crisis" and "structural changes in the economy have changed the growth model to one that is broader-based and more sustainable than in past recoveries".
CH	Reuters reported that China's central bank will remove the informal guidance on the ceiling of commercial deposit rates. Although China announced to remove the ceiling of commercial deposit rate back in 2015, marking an important step of interest rate liberalization, most of deposit rate has been capped at 50% above benchmark interest rate, which is still way below the yield offered by wealth management products.
CMD	Market sentiment was clearly in risk-off territory overnight, seen from lower Wall Street and higher gold prices. Moreover, risk premium in crude oil prices surged overnight following US and its allied forces missile strike on Syria. Despite Syria's low oil production at merely 17k barrels per day, the intensity of the missile strike (described to be twice that of 2017's strike) has surged Brent prices beyond its $72/bbl overnight. Still, we caution against the sustained rally in oil prices into the week ahead; geopolitical effects on commodity prices, especially oil, has proven to be short-lived.

Major Market

- US: Equities eased on Friday to close a relatively strong week. Bank stocks bore the brunt of the declines, despite JPMorgan's earnings came in on the strong side. Overall, the S&P 500 closed down 0.29%, while the Dow and Nasdaq Composite lost 0.50% and 0.47% respectively. VIX slipped to 17.41. US Treasuries were mixed, with the short end seeing losses, but the long end marking gains. The 2y benchmark yield added 1 bp to 2.357%, while the 10y yield softened to 2.827%.
- This week, the earnings season will be in full swing. This earnings season may have great significance, as the markets look to it to potentially pull equities out of its recent weakness. Meanwhile, watch for Syrian tensions to drive risk sentiments. Signs from the Russian side appeared positive over the weekend. Fed-speak will also be on tap every day this week as well.
- Singapore: The STI added 0.94% to close at 3501.30 on Friday, but may test waters within a 3480-3520 range today, given Friday gains in Wall Street and morning gains in Nikkei and Kospi. With the flattening in the UST bond yield curve, SGS bonds may reverse the steepening bias seen on Friday.
- China: As China is fighting off balance sheet activity, the removal of informal guidance may facilitate banks to bring deposits back to balance sheet. On data, China's aggregate financing missed the market expectation despite new Yuan loan is in line with expectation. The weaker than expected aggregate social financing was mainly the result of shrink of off-balance sheet financing.
- Indonesia: BI is foreseeing a trade surplus in March of $1.1bn. The central bank sees a current-account deficit of 2% of GDP in 1Q 2018 as they believe this forecasted trade surplus should offset deficits posted in January and February.
- Commodities: The rally could also be due to OPEC's alleged targeting of $80/bbl according to anonymous sources to Bloomberg, although much of the rally in our view, must be underpinned by a drastic improvement in fundamentals led by the continued improvement of global economic growth. Till that happens, do expect market-watchers to return to fundamental-watching when geopolitical-led dust settles, which could normalise oil prices lower again very soon.

Bond Market Updates

- Market Commentary: The SGD swap curve rose last Friday, with swap rates for the shorter tenors trading 1-2bps higher while the longer tenors traded 2-5bps higher. The Bloomberg Barclays Asia USD IG Bond Index average OAS widened 1bps to 127bps while the Bloomberg Barclays Asia USD HY Bond Index average widened 2bps to 344bps. 10Y UST yields fell 1bps lower to 2.83%, as Wall Street stocks slipped, as quarterly results from large banks led by JPMorgan failed to stoke investor enthusiasm.
- New issues: China Hongqiao Group Ltd has scheduled for investor meetings from 16 Apr for its potential USD bond issuance. Philippine National Bank has scheduled for investor meetings from 16 Apr for its potential USD 5-year bond issuance. China Overseas Finance (Cayman) VII Ltd has scheduled for investor meetings from 16 Apr for its potential USD 5-year bond issuance (guaranteed by China Overseas Land & Investment Ltd).
