

Highlights

Global	Wall Street and the USD retreated amid renewed market anxiety that the US-North Korean summit on 12 June may not materialise after US President Trump warned that “there’s a chance, a very substantial chance, it won’t work out”. Surprisingly, in a meeting with South Korean President Moon, Trump was asked if he was pleased about the China trade talks which he responded “not really” but “they’re a start”. Meanwhile, the UST yield curve steepened as longer-dated tenors continued to sell off despite a healthy 2-year bond auction which fetched a yield of 2.57% (highest since mid-2008) even as indirect bidding dropped to 39.3% (smallest since December 2016). With the weak overnight cues, Asian bourses may open softer and trade a more cautious path today. The economic calendar today comprises Malaysia, S’pore and UK’s CPI, US new home sales and manufacturing PMI. Key would be the 2 May FOMC minutes. Speakers include RBA’s Lowe and Fed’s Kashkari.
US	The Richmond Fed manufacturing index rebounded more than expected from -3 in Apr to +16 in May, as new order volume, shipments, capacity utilisation and order backlogs jumped. Separately, House lawmakers voted 258-159 to advance a bill that will rollback the Dodd-Frank Act.
SG	Headline and core inflation likely rose 0.3% yoy (-0.3% mom nsa) and 1.3% yoy in April, versus 0.2% yoy (-0.2% mom nsa) and 1.5% yoy in March. COE premium tender results are also due later today.
MA	Former Prime Minister Najib Razak spent four hours giving statements and verifying documents at the Malaysian Anti-Corruption Commission yesterday. The session will reportedly resume on Thursday 24th May 2018. Finance Minister Lim Guan Eng has claimed that the government has paid out RM6.98bn since April 2017 to cover debt accumulated by 1MDB. He also stated that the government debt exceeds more than RM1 trillion. Meanwhile, foreign stock inflows into Malaysia for 2018 have been wiped out as the number now turns to an outflow at $21.2m for year to date as of 21st May 2018. Foreign reserves also slightly dropped to $109.4bn as of 15th May 2018 (30th April 2018: $109.5bn).
TH	The country’s trade environment remains supported, with exports growing by another double-digit pace by 12.3%. Exports of industry-related products including electronics (+14.9%), vehicles & parts (+17.0%), plastics (+24.7%), construction materials (+19.5%) and rubber products (+18.6%) led exports higher. Import growth surprised higher at +20.4%, the fastest since Jan 2018.
CMD	Brent closed at its highest since Nov 2014 at $79.57.bbl, although WTI edged lower. To that end, market-watchers are likely cognizant over US’ decision to impose sanctions against Venezuela, exacerbating previous sanction-led concerns on Iran which has effectively rallied oil prices over the last few weeks. Note that data from the American Petroleum Institute showed that US oil inventories fell 1.33 million barrels from last week. In Asia, palm oil futures have rallied to its six-week high. While some of the rally could have been led by higher seasonal demand leading into the Ramadan period, the somewhat stalling of US-Sino trade talks and the relatively lack of progress seen in the lifting of US-China imposed tariffs could eventually lead palm demand higher as a substitute for China’s soybean demand.

Major Market

- US: Equities took a breather on Tuesday after gains at the opening of the week, with renewed concerns over North Korea and Trump's downplaying of Sino-US trade progress weighing on investors' minds. Energy and industrial stocks were the main drag, while financials provided some support. Overall, the S&P 500 slipped 0.31%, while the Dow and Nasdaq Composite lost 0.72% and 0.21% respectively. VIX inched higher to 13.22 compared to 13.08 previously. Meanwhile, the UST curve was largely static, with the 2y benchmark added 1bp to 2.5680% and the 10y unchanged at 3.0597%. Expect the 10y yield to sustain above the 3.05% level pending further cues from the FOMC minutes release later today.
- Singapore: The STI slipped 0.14% to close at 3543.18 yesterday and may continue to consolidate between 3525-3555 today amid weak market cues and renewed North Korean antics. The SGS bond market may mimic the overnight steepening bias in the UST bond yield curve. We published our SGS bond strategy piece on the upcoming 5-year SGS re-opening yesterday which highlighted that the demand-supply dynamics do not favour the current re-opening of the July 2023 bond in the near-term and we could see further pressure for bond yields to move higher from here, albeit its bond yield has climbed by around 57bps for the year-to-date, so there may be some value emerging on an absolute basis - we think fair value for the re-opening of the July 2023 will be capped around 2.45%.
- Indonesia: According to Bloomberg, Finance Minister Sri Mulyani Indrawati has said that the central bank has room to raise its benchmark interest rate further. She was quoted as saying, "Bank Indonesia has previously decreased rates so it still has room". Reportedly, according to Bloomberg also, Indrawati said the government, Bank Indonesia and the Financial Services Authority would continue efforts to ensure the health of the financial sector and economic stability but she did say, "not at all costs".

Bond Market Updates

- Market Commentary: The SGD swap curve flattened yesterday, with swap rates for the shorter tenors trading 1bps lower while the longer tenors traded 2bps lower. The Bloomberg Barclays Asia USD IG Bond Index average OAS traded little changed at 1.34% while the Bloomberg Barclays Asia USD HY Bond Index average OAS widened 1bps to 413bps. 10Y UST yields traded little changed at 3.06% yesterday.
- New issues: Mitsubishi UFG Financial Group Inc. has hired banks for its EUR 5-year floating rate and/or 10-year fixed rate senior unsecured bond.
