

Highlights

Global	Asian bourses may continue to trade on a firm tone ahead of new Fed chair Powell's congressional testimony articulating his semi-annual monetary policy report later today and again on 1 Mar, taking the lead from Wall Street which saw four-week high. Elsewhere, ECB president Draghi opined that recent volatility, particularly in currency markets, deserves close monitoring and policymakers must remain persistent in providing monetary accommodation. For this morning, BOK kept its policy rate static at 1.5%. The economic data calendar comprises US' durable goods orders, FHFA and S&P house prices, Conference Board consumer confidence, and wholesale inventories, Eurozone's economic and consumer confidence, German CPI, as well as HK trade. Apart from Powell, other speakers include ECB's Mersch, BOE's Woods, and RBNZ's Bascand.
US	US' new home sales unexpectedly fell 7.8% mom to 593k in Jan, likely due to a year-end flurry ahead of tax changes which saw upward revisions to both Nov and Dec17. Meanwhile, the Chicago Fed national activity index retreated from a revised 0.14 in Dec17 to 0.12 in Jan18, whereas the Dallas Fed manufacturing activity improved from 33.4 to 37.2.
EZ	EU Ambassador to the US O'Sullivan said "I don't see how steel imports from NATO can be deemed to be a national security threat to the United States". This was in response to the mid-April deadline that US president Trump has to decide on steel and aluminium imports which was declared by the US Commerce Department to threaten national security.
SG	The $1.7b re-opening of the 30-year SGS bond maturing on 1 March 2046 saw a cut-off yield of 2.74% with a bid-cover ratio of 2.21x (highest since Mar12) and a short tail of 5bps. The median yield was 2.90%, which was close to where the bond had closed the day before, and within market expectations. Meanwhile, industrial production rebounded to 17.9% yoy (6.7% mom sa) in Jan18, beating market expectations, but is partly attributable to a low base effect as CNY was in Jan17 with some spillover into Feb17. The Jan18 data marked the strongest on-year performance since Aug17 and reversed four consecutive months of declines, excluding biomedical, manufacturing output grew an even stronger 21.6% yoy (4.5% mom sa) in Jan18. All the manufacturing clusters registered growth, led by electronics (32.4% yoy, aided by semicon, infocomms & consumer electronics), followed by precision engineering (24.5% due to robust production of optical products and dies, moulds and demand for back-end semiconductor equipment), chemicals (13.7%), general manufacturing (11.6%), biomedical manufacturing (2.5% as strong export demand for medical devices offset lower pharmaceutical output) and even transport engineering (1.4% as robust aerospace and land transport activities offset the 19.5% decline in marine & offshore engineering). The Jan18 surge may be relatively short-lived as the data is likely to normalise somewhat in the months ahead as the base effects get more challenging. We tip manufacturing growth to average 5.9% yoy for 1Q18, bringing GDP growth to around the 3% yoy handle.

Major Market

- US: Equities started the week on a strong footing on Monday, as concerns over rising rates continue to fade ahead of Powell's testimony to the House later today. Note the broad-based gains across ten of eleven industry sectors, with only utilities ending in the red as a group. Gains were led by the tech and financial sectors. Overall, the S&P 500 added 1.18%, while the Dow and Nasdaq Composite gained 1.58% and 1.15% respectively. VIX edged lower to 15.80, compared to 16.49 previously. US Treasury yields were lower by 1-2 bps across the curve, with 2y and 10y benchmark yields standing at 2.222% and 2.862% at NY close. Eyes will be on Powell's testimony to the House Committee later today.
- Singapore: Given the strong rally in Wall Street overnight, the STI which gained 0.64% to close at 3555.85 yesterday, may also extend gains today, taking the lead from Kospi's morning gains. STI's support and resistance are tipped at 3533 and 3577. With the longer-dated UST bonds extending gains again yesterday, pushing the 10-year UST bond yield back down to 2.86%, the SGS bond market may also rally further, especially since the $1.7b re-opening of the 30-year SGS bond saw strong demand.
- Macau: Inflation decelerated to 1.74% in January 2018 due to calendar effect. Notably, food inflation slowed to 2.25% as lower fresh food prices offset some positive effects of higher charges for eating out. Besides, lower fees for telecommunication services and package tours pushed price index of communication and recreation & culture down by 11.32% and 5.61% respectively. In contrast, housing and fuels accelerated to 1.16% amid higher energy prices, dearer housing rentals and low base effect. Increase in gold jewellery prices drove the inflation of miscellaneous goods & services up to 2.65%, the strongest level since April 2015. Moving forward, calendar effect may distort February's data print. Despite that, new property control measures are expected to increase supply and reduce demand in the rental housing market. Therefore, we expect housing and fuels prices to grow at a rather moderate rate. However, rally in commodity prices and a weaker MOP against major currencies may translate into imported inflation. Therefore, we expect inflation to surpass 2% in 2018.
- Visitor arrivals decreased by 4.7% yoy in January 2018 due to calendar effect. Specifically, the number of same-day visitors dropped significantly by 16.8% yoy. This offset the strong growth of 8.8% yoy in overnight visitors. By country of residence, the number of visitors from Mainland China, Hong Kong and Taiwan decreased 3.5% yoy, 16.8% yoy and 0.8% yoy respectively. However, tourists from South Korea and Japan jumped by 20.2% yoy and 6.9% yoy respectively. Therefore, we believe that January's decrease is transitory. With a new wave of mega projects commenced operation or to open this year, we expect overnight visitors to increase further. Improvement in infrastructure will also encourage residents of Mainland China and Hong Kong to visit the gambling hub. Moreover, a weaker MOP against major currencies may boost the city's tourism activities. All in all, we expect tourism sector to revive further this year and in turn lend support to the retail sector and the mass-market of the gaming sector.

Bond Market Updates

- Market Commentary: The SGD swap curve bull-flattened yesterday, with swap rates for the shorter tenors trading 2-3bps lower while the longer tenors traded 4-5bps lower. In the broader dollar space, the Bloomberg Barclays Asia USD IG Bond Index average OAS traded little changed at 113bps while the Bloomberg Barclays Asia USD HY Bond Index average OAS tightened 1bps to 344bps. 10Y UST yield fell 4bps to 2.83% earlier in the day as traders reduced their bearish bond positions in advance Fed Chairman Jerome Powell's semi-annual monetary policy testimony before Congress this week. Towards the latter part of the day, 10Y UST yield retraced 3bps and closed at 2.86% due to commentary from Randal Quarles, a member of Fed Board of Governors, who said there is a possibility that the US economy will shift to a higher growth trajectory and hence potentially a higher long-term terminal rate. Overall, 10Y UST yields was little changed at 2.86%

- Rating changes: S&P has stated that its 'B' corporate credit rating and stable outlook on Sprint Corp are not affected by their recent outlook revision on SoftBank. The rating action reflects S&P's view that SoftBank would provide Sprint with some degree of support if it falls into financial difficulty but does not necessarily imply a long-term commitment of support by Softbank.
