

Highlights

Global	The surge in the euro to its highest since Aug'16 prints given ECB Draghi's perceived hawkish comment took headlines this morning. Rhetorically, Draghi commented that "the central bank can accompany the recovery by adjusting the parameters of its policy instruments – not in order to tighten the policy stance, but to keep it broadly unchanged", leading market-watchers to regard that ECB could be ready to reduce its bond-buying program. Still, the ECB chief also commented that any "adjustments to our stance have to be made gradually, and only when the improving dynamics that justify them appear sufficiently secure." In a similarly closely-watched central bank talk, Yellen's speech earlier in London steered clear from giving any further cues on the FOMC monetary stance, and only mentioned that the central bank will "raise interest rates very gradually". Elsewhere, note that Senate Republicans postponed a planned vote on the GOP bill to replace Obamacare until after the 4th July recess. Moreover, IMF cut US growth outlook to 2.1%, down from its April's pencil of 2.3%, citing the removal of assumption of Trump's plan to cut taxes and boost infrastructure spending to spur growth. A relatively quiet economic calendar for today, note US MBA mortgage application and wholesale inventory prints later.
US	Equities took a hit as Fed officials appear coordinated in hinting that asset valuations are looking elevated. Selling pressure on tech stocks continued to dominate the agenda, while healthcare also took a hit after the US Senate delayed a vote on Trump's healthcare reforms. Financials was the only industry sector that rose within the S&amp;P 500 index. Overall, the S&amp;P 500 and the Dow shed 0.81% and 0.46% respectively, and the Nasdaq Composite led losses with a 1.61% retreat. US Treasuries also saw a sell-off, as Yellen reiterated that the pace of monetary tightening remained unchanged. It appears that any nascent market expectations that rate hikes will be delayed in the face of recent weakness in data will be disappointed. 2y and 10y benchmark yields soared 4-7 bps, standing at 1.37% and 2.21% at NY close.
CH	China's Premier Li Keqiang hinted yesterday in the World Economic Forum that China's growth momentum extended in the second quarter. As such, we think the chance for China's growth to stay above 6.5% in 2Q is high.
MU	Unemployment rate held static at 2% during the three months through April while total employed population rose slightly from 381,500 to 381,800. This indicates that the labor market remains resilient. By sector, employment in the gaming sector rose by 1.1% on monthly basis due to further improvement in the sector's performance.
Commodities	The commodity complex saw broad gains across the commodity classes, especially seen in dollar-denominated ones on the weaker greenback. The energy sector saw the most gains, with WTI gaining almost 2.0% to $44.24/bbl while Brent closed 1.8% higher to $46.65/bbl. Surprisingly however, the precious metal complex were flattish, suggesting the market-watchers' concerns over FOMC rate hike and balance sheet tapering later this year should eventually dull gold's safe haven value.

Major Markets

- Singapore: The STI index rose by 0.31% to close at 3,219.53 as 29 out of the 40 member index ended the day above water. Top gainers would include SATS Ltd (+1.78%), Jardine Cycle & Carriage Ltd (+1.76%), and Genting Singapore PLC (+$1.41%) while losses from City Developments Ltd (-1.56%), CapitaLand Commercial Trust (-0.61%), and CapitaLand Ltd (-0.56%) limited the advance of the index.
- Macau: On the other hand, employment in construction sector retreated by 4.5% mom (-26.5% yoy) as fewer mega projects are under construction as compared to the past two years. As the only mega project to be launched this year has not been completed yet, the employment in the hotel and restaurants sector reduced by 0.9% mom (-2.7% yoy). Finally, as the retail sector continued to gain traction amid improved tourism activities, employers increased headcounts with employment growing 0.1% mom (9.7% yoy). Looking ahead, we expect overall hiring sentiments to remain upbeat in the gaming and retail sectors amid the revival in tourism activities. On the other hand, tourism-related sectors will increase their labor force demand as the number of projects scheduled to be completed is set to increase in the coming years. This complements the government's plan to increase housing supply which will also boost employment in the construction sector. Therefore, unemployment rate is likely to remain around 2% this year.

Bond Market Updates

- Market Commentary: The SGD swap curve bull-flattened yesterday, with swap rates trading 2-3bps lower across all tenors. Meanwhile, Federal Reserve Chairwoman Janet Yellen continued to signal that the U.S. economy can withstand higher interest rates and said that asset valuations were rich.

Hindustan Petroleum Corp Ltd also plans to issue USD bonds.
- Rating Changes: S&P affirmed Japan-based general trading and investment company Marubeni Corp.'s (Marubeni) 'BBB' corporate credit and senior unsecured debt ratings. In addition, S&P revised the company's rating outlook to stable from negative. S&P has revised the outlook on Power Construction Corp. of China (PCC) to negative from stable. At the same time, S&P has affirmed their 'BBB+' corporate credit rating. The rating action reflects S&P's expectation that PCC will continue to undertake substantial capital expenditure (capex) in investment projects in the general infrastructure sector and in power assets. Moody's downgraded FWD Limited's (FWD) issuer and senior unsecured debt ratings to 'Baa3' from 'Baa2'. The rating outlook for FWD is now stable following the downgrade. The rating action reflects Moody's view that the diversification benefits to holding company creditors gained through the contributions of dividends from its subsidiaries have become, and will remain, less evident relative to the Group's interest expenses.
