

Highlights

Global	True to form, US President tweeted that “Russia and China are playing the Currency Devaluation game as the US keeps raising interest rates...Not acceptable!” This came shortly after the US Treasury Department refrained from naming any nation as a currency manipulator. While this lent some brief support to Treasury bonds whose curve continued to flatten, the USD remained on the back foot and Wall Street rose (with S&P500 clawing back to positive territory for the year-to-date). China remained the largest foreign holder of US Treasuries and increased its purchases by US$8.5b in Feb (most in six months), but this was prior to Trump’s tariff salvos. Asian bourses may range trade today, awaiting China’s data dump which includes 1Q18 GDP growth (market eyeing 6.8% yoy), retail sales, industrial production and fixed asset investments. Other economic data to watch include US’ industrial production, building permits and housing starts, German ZEW survey, UK’s ILO unemployment rate and jobless claims, and Japan’s industrial production. Speakers include Fed’s Quarles, Harker, Evans and Bostic.
US	Retail sales saw its first expansion since Nov, growing by 0.6% mom in Mar and rebounding from the -0.1% print in Feb. The Empire manufacturing index softened more than expected from 22.5 in Mar to 15.8 in Apr. President Trump plans to nominate Pimpc’s Richard Clarida as the Fed vice-chair and Kansas State Bank Commissioner Michelle Bowman as a Fed governor, subject to US Senate confirmation. Meanwhile, Fed’s Dudley opined that “I don’t think we know exactly how many more rate hikes we are going to do this year”, but “as long as inflation is relatively low, the Fed is going to be gradual” and “three or four seemed like a reasonable expectation this year”.
SG	NODX unexpectedly fell for the second consecutive month by 2.7% yoy (-1.8% mom sa) in Mar, below market consensus expectations of +1.2% yoy (+2.4% mom sa) and our forecast for -0.4% yoy (5.1% momsa), which could be partly attributable to the high base in Mar17 (+16.5% yoy). The main drag was electronics NODX which fell for the fourth straight month by 7.1% yoy in Mar, but even non-electronics also extended declines at 1.3% yoy. Four of the top 10 NODX markets saw negative NODX growth in Mar, led by China (-12.2% yoy) with weakness in HK, Thailand and Malaysia as well, whereas NODX to the US (32.6% yoy), Japan (21.6% yoy), Indonesia (17.3% yoy) and EU (11.3% yoy) remained healthy.
CH	The bond market has entered a mini bull cycle recently as a result of improving interbank liquidity, contained inflationary pressure as well as expectations on the deceleration of China’s growth. Market will closely watch out for the 1Q GDP due today.
CMD	Market-watchers were quick to bring crude oil prices lower yesterday, just a day after the weekend’s US-led missile strike into Syrian territories. As iterated from yesterday’s report, oil prices gain given the increased risk premiums from the intensified geopolitical tensions, though history reference has proved the rally to be very short-lived, thus explaining the fall in oil prices overnight. Moreover, conventional wisdom points towards the risk of higher US-led oil production should oil prices gain further, a reason we think, is adequate to cap oil prices in the foreseeable horizon.

Major Market

- US: Equities saw gains overnight following strong earnings reports and positive domestic data that aided market-watchers' risk appetite over simmering geopolitical tensions. The Dow and S&P 500 rose 0.87% and 0.81%, respectively to end higher. Similarly, the Nasdaq composite added 0.70%. VIX fell to 16.56, compared to 17.41 previously. Meanwhile, US Treasury saw the 2y yield add 2bp to end firmer at 2.377% while the 10y yield remained unchanged at 2.827%.
- Singapore: The STI lost 0.12% to close at 3497.19 and may continue to bounce around the 3500 handle for now despite stronger overnight cues from Wall Street and modest morning gains from Kospi. STI's range is tipped at 3480-3515. With the sustained flattening bias in the UST bond yield curve, SGS bonds may also continue to follow suit as investors await Thursday's issue size announcement for the new 10-year SGS bond due for auction on 26 Apr.
- China: On currency, RMB strengthened in the offshore market after President Trump criticized China's currency devaluation on twitter. As the impact of trade tension on RMB is likely to diminish, the near term driving factor for RMB may go back to the US dollar.
- Indonesia: The country posted a surprise trade surplus for March at US$1092m after three months of reporting trade deficits. Exports rose by 6.14% yoy and imports increased by 9.07% yoy. In particular, this surplus was driven by a 8.2% yoy jump in non-oil and gas exports as exports of mining and others surged by 45%. This means that for the entire 1Q18, the trade balance was at a surplus of US$238m.

Bond Market Updates

- Market Commentary: The SGD swap curve rose with swap rates trading 1-2bps higher across most tenors.
