Somewhat disappointing US' retail sales data dampened market optimism after encouraging earnings from JPMorgan, Bank of America and Wells Fargo on Friday. Meanwhile, the GBP continued to suffer ahead of UK PM May's speech on Tuesday which investors fear could outline a hard Brexit scenario. To kickstart this week, US markets are closed for a Martin Luther King holiday, but market attention will likely revolve around this Friday's inauguration of US president Trump as well as China's 4Q16 GDP print. For today, the economic data calendar remains lightweight and comprises of Indonesia's Dec trade and Japan's tertiary industry index and machine tools

For today, the economic data calendar remains lightweight and comprises of Indonesia's Dec trade and Japan's tertiary industry index and machine tools orders. ECB's Mersch and BOE's Carney are also speaking. This week's central bank watch include BOC (likely unchanged at 0.5% on 18/1), BNM (probably static at 3.0% on 19/1), ECB (also likely on hold for now, but Draghi may hint at future QE program intentions post-2017 given the slightly brighter recent economic outlook), and BI (likely on static at 4.75% on 19/1). Chinese President Xi is also speaking at the World Economic Forum.

Retail sales disappointed by accelerating from a revised 0.2% mom in Nov to 0.6% mom in Dec, attributed to stronger auto demand (+2.4%, marking the strongest motor vehicle sales in 11 years), but retail sales ex-auto and gas actually slowed from +0.3% to 0% as sales at department stores, restaurants and electronics and appliances merchants fell. This suggested a potential post-Fed rate hike easing in momentum of consumer spending. Meanwhile, the University of Michigan sentiment index also eased marginally from 98.2 in Dec to 98.1 in Jan, but the current conditions and expectations gauges diverged 112.5 (previously 111.9) and 88.9 (98.2) respectively. Notably, the 1-year and 5-10 year inflation gauges both picked up to 2.6% and 2.5% respectively, up from 2.2% (lowest since Sep 2010) and 2.3% (record-low), possibly in anticipation of fiscal reflation. Separately, PPI moderated from 0.4% to 0.3% in Dec, notwithstanding higher wholesale food prices (+0.7%) and energy prices (+2.6%), and PPI excluding food and energy also halved to China's export in dollar term fell by 6.1% in December while import in dollar term increased by 3.1%. Trade surplus narrowed further to US$40.8 billion. The larger than expected decline of export in December was mainly due to weaker demand from emerging market despite demand from the US remained steady. China's import of commodity remained strong in December.

Bank Indonesia sees current account deficit at 1.8% of GDP in 2016, and expects a widening of trade surplus in December and Q4 GDP growth of 5%. Separately, the government has announced that it will relax a ban on exports of raw unprocessed mineral ores to allow for exports of excess nickel ore and bauxite by miners that are building processing plants in the country.

Bank Negara's Governor Muhammad Ibrahim reportedly said that the central bank will consider introducing more measures to stabilize the ringgit if needed, while emphasizing that the new measures are "not capital controls, not fixing of the ringgit, but to stabilize the ringgit."

Major Markets

- US: Equities ended the week largely positive, with the Nasdaq rising 0.48% to a new record and the S&P 500 gaining 0.18% to close within 0.1% of its record high. The Dow slipped marginally to close at 19,886. Stronger-than-expected retail sales and producer prices gave equities some fundamental economic support, while financials were supported by decent quarterly results from major Wall Street banks. VIX retreated 2.7% to close at 11.23. Meanwhile, US Treasuries fell amidst strong economic data and a report by CFTC noting record shorts in 10-year space amongst large speculators. 2- and 10-year benchmark yields rose 2-4 bps to 1.19% and 2.40% respectively.
- Singapore: The STI saw a strong rally of 1.07% to close at 3025.07 on Friday, but may meander given mixed leads from Wall Street on Friday and weak morning cues from Kospi. The STI may trade between 3000-3040. The SGS yield curve steepened on Friday, but may trade in a range ahead of Thursday's issue size details for the 2-year SGS bond re-opening on 26 Jan.
- China: RMB's gain against the dollar last week was mainly supported by two factors including weak dollar as well as tightening measures on individual's foreign currency purchase. The daily trading volume in the onshore CNY fell to average USD21.7 billion last week, down from average US$28.7 billion in the first week of 2017, signalling less than expected demand for foreign currency.
- Hong Kong: The IMF raised its forecasts on HK's growth to 1.5% and 2% (v.s. our forecasts of 1.4% and 1.9%) for 2016 and 2017 respectively. The rebound in economic growth is expected to be attributed to the improvement in private consumption on a stable labor market. The IMF believed that the strong fundamentals will allow HK's economy to survive in the unfavorable external environment and also reiterated its support for the linked exchange rate system. Additionally, it points out three main risks faced by HK's economy, including a closer relationship with Mainland China, high exposure to external shocks as an international financial center, and the heated housing market. On this, we opine that HK's economy could weather some downward risks, should the Fed raise rates at a slower pace while capital inflows continue from Mainland China.

Bond Market Updates

- Market Commentary: The SGD swap curve traded upwards on Friday, with swap rates past the 3 month tenor rising 1-4bps. In the broader dollar space, the spread on JACI IG Corporates changed little, remaining at 198bps, while the yield on JACI HY Corporates rose 2bps to 6.80%. 10y UST yield rose 3bps last Friday to 2.40% as data on retail sales and producer prices showed U.S. economic growth remains intact, boosting wagers the Fed will raise interest rates by its March meeting.
- New Issues: China real estate developer, Times Property Holdings Ltd. is proposing to issue potential USD senior notes. China Huarong International Holdings Ltd. scheduled investor roadshows from 16 18 January for a potential USD perp issuance. The expected issue ratings are 'NR/Baa1/A-'. China Development Bank plans to issue dual-tranche USD/EUR bonds this week. Beijing Capital Land Ltd. scheduled investor roadshows from 16 18 January for a potential USD/CNH bond. The expected issue ratings are 'NR/NR/BBB'. Pan Brothers scheduled investor roadshows from 16 18 January for a potential USD bond issuance. The expected issue ratings are 'NR/B1/B'.
- Rating Changes: Moody's assigned a 'B1' corporate family rating to Pan Brothers Tbk (P.T) and 'B1' rating to a proposed issuance of USD senior unsecured notes by Pan Brothers' wholly own subsidiary, PB International B.V. The 'B1' ratings reflect Pan Brothers' demonstrated ability to generate solid earnings growth and maintain stable margins within a competitive and fragmented Indonesian garment manufacturing sector, supported by its longstanding relationships with major global apparel retailers and investments in capacity expansion. In addition, Fitch assigned a foreigner currency issuer default rating (IDR) of 'B' with a positive outlook to Pan Brothers. Fitch assigned 'BBB-' final ratings to BPRL International Singapore Pte. Ltd.'s (BISPL) USD600mn 4.375% guaranteed notes, same as the expected ratings assigned earlier on 3 January 2017.
