

Key takeaways from MAS annual report

Thursday, June 27, 2019

Highlights:

- Since the narrowing of the original 1.5-3.5% official growth forecast to the lower half of the range at 1.5-2.5% was quite recent, the stated intention to review the forecast again clearly reflects how the external macro-environment has deteriorated since May with the breakdown of US-China trade negotiations and the rising downside growth risks. If the official forecast revision comes to pass, it can be anyone's guess of 0.5-1.5% or 1-2% yoy.
- In particular, the suggestion that 2Q19 GDP growth could be lower than in 1Q19 opens up a potential can of worms and potentially jeopardises the baseline scenario that 2H19 will see some stabilization in growth from a tepid 1H19, which was in turn predicated on a modest pickup in the manufacturing, especially electronics cycle by 4Q19.
- The US-China trade war remains first and foremost the key risk for the global and Singapore economy. Now that the tariff escalation have dragged out to nearly a year and US president Trump is still threatening his "Plan B" for China, there is a real risk of deeper and more widespread disruptions to global/regional supply chains, handicapping firms from their capex and hiring plans, and worsening business and consumer confidence.
- If slower quarter-on-quarter 2Q19 growth materialises, then the risk of a potential technical recession in 3Q19 is clearly heightened. Our 2Q19 GDP growth forecast is currently 1.3% yoy, but remains vulnerable to the June manufacturing performance given that there is a high base in June 2018 too. If June manufacturing output contracts more than 4.6% yoy, then all bet may be off and there would be downside risk to our full-year 1.8% yoy GDP growth forecast.
- Globally, major central banks like the FOMC and ECB have pivoted to a more dovish stance, whilst other central banks in Asia like RBI, BSP amongst others have begun easing monetary policy. Given the decelerating global growth and trade momentum, the dilemma for central banks that had normalised monetary policy in 2018 is when to start to unwind some of the earlier tightening. This will also be a challenge for the upcoming October MPS. Should incoming economic data continue to deteriorate, the probability of taking back some of the earlier 2018 monetary policy tightening is not insignificant.

Treasury Research
Tel: 6530-8384

Selena Ling
Tel: 6530-4887
LingSSSelena@ocbc.com

-
- MAS also noted it has been in active dialogue with the US Treasury regarding the role of FX intervention operations within Singapore's monetary policy framework, but opined that Singapore's inclusion in the US Treasury Report has no direct consequences for the economy or the conduct of MAS' monetary policy.

This publication is solely for information purposes only and may not be published, circulated, reproduced or distributed in whole or in part to any other person without our prior written consent. This publication should not be construed as an offer or solicitation for the subscription, purchase or sale of the securities/instruments mentioned herein. Any forecast on the economy, stock market, bond market and economic trends of the markets provided is not necessarily indicative of the future or likely performance of the securities/instruments. Whilst the information contained herein has been compiled from sources believed to be reliable and we have taken all reasonable care to ensure that the information contained in this publication is not untrue or misleading at the time of publication, we cannot guarantee and we make no representation as to its accuracy or completeness, and you should not act on it without first independently verifying its contents. The securities/instruments mentioned in this publication may not be suitable for investment by all investors. Any opinion or estimate contained in this report is subject to change without notice. We have not given any consideration to and we have not made any investigation of the investment objectives, financial situation or particular needs of the recipient or any class of persons, and accordingly, no warranty whatsoever is given and no liability whatsoever is accepted for any loss arising whether directly or indirectly as a result of the recipient or any class of persons acting on such information or opinion or estimate. This publication may cover a wide range of topics and is not intended to be a comprehensive study or to provide any recommendation or advice on personal investing or financial planning. Accordingly, they should not be relied on or treated as a substitute for specific advice concerning individual situations. Please seek advice from a financial adviser regarding the suitability of any investment product taking into account your specific investment objectives, financial situation or particular needs before you make a commitment to purchase the investment product. OCBC Bank, its related companies, their respective directors and/or employees (collectively "Related Persons") may or might have in the future interests in the investment products or the issuers mentioned herein. Such interests include effecting transactions in such investment products, and providing broking, investment banking and other financial services to such issuers. OCBC Bank and its Related Persons may also be related to, and receive fees from, providers of such investment products.

This report is intended for your sole use and information. By accepting this report, you agree that you shall not share, communicate, distribute, deliver a copy of or otherwise disclose in any way all or any part of this report or any information contained herein (such report, part thereof and information, "Relevant Materials") to any person or entity (including, without limitation, any overseas office, affiliate, parent entity, subsidiary entity or related entity) (any such person or entity, a "Relevant Entity") in breach of any law, rule, regulation, guidance or similar. In particular, you agree not to share, communicate, distribute, deliver or otherwise disclose any Relevant Materials to any Relevant Entity that is subject to the Markets in Financial Instruments Directive (2014/65/EU) ("MiFID") and the EU's Markets in Financial Instruments Regulation (600/2014) ("MiFIR") (together referred to as "MiFID II"), or any part thereof, as implemented in any jurisdiction. No member of the OCBC Group shall be liable or responsible for the compliance by you or any Relevant Entity with any law, rule, regulation, guidance or similar (including, without limitation, MiFID II, as implemented in any jurisdiction).