Highlights

Global	23 June will be the key date to watch for the Brexit referendum, especially with London mayor Boris Johnson backing the exit (please refer to our recent report "Brexit"). Meanwhile the US' CPI inflation data spooked the Treasury bond market, which coupled with Fed's Mester sounding a tad more hawkish than expected. Mester opined that "the US economy will work through this episode of market turbulence and the soft patch of economic data to regain its footing for moderate growth", and the Fed remains on track for "gradual reductions over time". Elsewhere on the newsflow was China's easing of some property measures and the removal of CSRC chairman Xiao Gang. Looking ahead, Asian markets may trade with a cautious tone given a relatively quiet economic calendar, with US' Chicago Fed national activity index and Markit manufacturing PMI, Japan's Nikkei PMI and European services/composite PMIs on tap. It will be interesting to watch the G20 meeting in Shanghai later this week on 26-27 Feb to see if there will be any concrete measures apart from officials jawboning the FX markets.
US	The 12-month CPI inflation doubled from 0.7% yoy (-0.1% mom) in Dec to 1.4% yoy (0% mom) in Jan, even though energy prices fell 2.8% yoy in Jan. In particular, the core CPI added 2.2% yoy (+0.3% mom), which is the biggest surge since Jun12 and Aug11 respectively, on the back of higher rent, clothing, medical care, airfares and autos. Mester also noted that "oil prices cannot continue to decline indefinitely, nor can the dollar continue to appreciate forever" and "at some point, both will regain some stability and the effect of previous changes on inflation will dissipate".
Singapore	CPI is due tomorrow and is tipped to stay negative territory at -0.8% yoy (-0.4% mom nsa) with core CPI at +0.8% yoy, revised 4Q16 GDP growth estimates on 24/2 at 1.8% yoy (+5.1% qoq saar) versus the flash estimate of 2.0% yoy (+5.7% qoq saar). Also due, industrial production on 26/2 at -6.6% yoy (-1.7% mom sa).
China	China announced to lower tax for property transactions in all cities except the four tier-1 cities to further support housing market. The move is in line with China's goal to de-stock housing inventory to mitigate system risk from property market. China's security regulator CSRC denied the report that it has suspended the application of QDII, which allowed domestic investors to invest in the offshore market.
Indonesia	Bank Indonesia plans to boost the proportion of derivatives to 36-42% of total FX transactions this year, compared to 35% at end of last year. This is part of a financial market deepening program pursued by the central bank.
FX	Despite the latest reassurances from the Fed's Williams, an iffy FOMC trajectory and background risk aversion may keep the USD-JPY suppressed. With a spot ref at 112.84, we target 109.30 and set a stop at 114.65.
Commodities	WTI lingered below $30/bbl amid Brexit concerns, while market-watchers increasingly discount the recent Saudi Arabia-Russia deal in Doha on Iran's absence in committing to the production freeze. Gold shot higher to $1,230/oz once again on intensified risk aversion as investors flock to safe haven.

Major Market

- US: Wall Street ended flat to mixed on Friday and pared the weekly gains after crude oil prices slipped, with the Dow at -0.13%, S&P500 +0.38% and Nasdaq at 0%. VIX -5.13% to 20.53. The UST bond market recovered from its initial CPI shock and closed with the 2- and 10-year bond yields at 0.75% (+5bps) and 1.75% (+1bp) respectively.
- Singapore: The STI ended flat (-0.03%) at 2656.87 on Friday, and given mixed clues from Wall Street's Friday performance and weak morning cues from Nikkei and Kospi, the STI could trade with a softer tone today. STI support and resistance are tipped at 2600 and 2680. SGS bonds may be better bid today amid the slightly more hawkish turn in Fed market expectations and "Brexit" event risk.
- China: The deed tax for large units (90 square meter and above) will be lowered to 1.5% for first time buyers while the deed tax for small unit (below 90 square meter) remains unchanged at 1%. Meanwhile, the deed tax for the second property will also be lowered to 1% and 2% respectively for small and large units from previously 3% and 5%. In addition, China will also waive business tax for property sold after two years of purchase. The deed tax cut is likely to support upgrade demand.
- Hong Kong: Private residential housing starts fell slightly in December, posting 1,236 units. For the year 2015, housing starts recorded 18,152 units, 190% higher than the previous year. Figures indicate that the housing supply in the private sector could be on a solid growth pace over next two to three years. On the other hand, completion in December recorded 1,248 units while private residential housing completions reached 12,606 units in 2015, 20% down from the previous year. As there were fewer housing starts in 2013 (10,064 units) and 2014 (6,427 units), we believe that completions would continue to fall in 2016 even though home builders accelerate the completion of private housing so as to avoid competition with public housing and subsidized flats in later years. Nevertheless, based on the robust growth in groundbreaking in 2015, we expect that the completion could rebound in early 2017. Looking forward, we expect property prices to drop by around 10% yoy to 15% yoy in 2016 due to weak investor sentiment and a possible rate hike in US.

Bond Market Updates

- Market Commentary: The SGD swap curve flattened last Friday, with the belly falling 1-3bps and the long end falling 4bps. In the broader dollar space, JACI IG corporates widened 4bps to 253bps, while the yield on the JACI HY corporates tightened by 4bps to 8.31%. The 10y UST yield remained flat at 1.74%.
- New Issues: Capitaland Mall Trust priced a SGD100mn 10-year bond at 3.5% (SDSW10Y + 87bps) last Thursday.
- Rating Changes: Moody's placed the Baosteel group of companies on negative credit watch, expecting deterioration in earnings and debt leverage given the adverse operating environment for the steel industry in China. Moody's has placed Hengdeli Holdings ("Ba2") on negative credit watch given the weak earnings guidance which the issuer gave during its recent earnings announcement. S&P affirmed and withdrew Philippine National Bank ("B+")' ratings at the bank's request.
