

Highlights

Global	Market sentiment appears to be more supported, with S&P 500 stock index up by 0.8% overnight. In fact, a rebound in technology shares pushed US markets to fresh high levels. For the day ahead, market will be on the lookout for MSCI's decision on whether to include China's domestic shares in its benchmark indices. It had rejected China's entry three times before, citing illiquidity concerns. Market will also be digesting comments by Chicago's Federal Reserve chief, Charles Evans, this morning. In a speech in New York, Evans sounded dovish, stating that the Fed needs to show a commitment to reaching their goal on inflation, which has been running below target since 2008. While he supported last week's rate hike decision, Evans said that "the current environment supports very gradual rate hikes and slow preset reductions in our balance sheet."
CH	China's bond market rallied on Monday following PBoC's CNY110 billion net injections.
HK	China's insurance regulator has blocked 35 websites and social media accounts that have been selling Hong Kong insurance products to Mainland investors. Mainland institutions have been increasingly violating the laws by directly selling or acting as proxy for sales of Hong Kong insurance products to mainland consumers. As the outlook of RMB has been improving, the major factor driving Mainlanders to invest in foreign assets is their increasing needs for assets diversification. However, these needs may not be easily met as Chinese authorities appear to have remained cautious about outflows under capital account. Adding on China's deleveraging campaign, we believe that capital flows from Mainland China to HK will decelerate and lend less support to the HKD.
ID	Finance Minister Sri Mulyani Indrawati said that the government is in the process of finalizing revisions to 2017 budget, with the fiscal deficit set to be widened to 2.6% of GDP. The government will need IDR37-40tn of additional financing, and will add IDR10-20tn of additional spending for some special needs including preparation for Asian Games.
MA	Malaysia Building Society has reportedly submitted an application to Bank Negara to seek approvals for a proposed merger with Asian Finance Bank.
KR	About half of South Koreans are in favour of reopening the Gaeseong Industrial Complex (GIC), according to Realmeter poll. Specifically, 49.4% supported the move, 39.9% opposed it, while 16.8% were "very opposed" to the project. The Gaesong Industrial Complex has historically been a symbol of inter-Korean cooperation.
CMD	News of further supplies from Libya and the US threatened oil prices lower. Reportedly, Libyan oil production is the highest in four years, after a deal with Wintershall which enabled at least two of its fields to resume oil production. Elsewhere, US oil rig counts rose for its 22nd straight session, suggesting higher oil production into the month ahead.
