

Highlights

Global	Market sentiment continued to consolidate ahead of this week's key events including Tuesday's Trump-Kim summit as well as three major central banks' meetings including FOMC, ECB and BOJ. The G7 meeting over the weekend did not bode well for risk sentiment as President Trump walked away without endorsing the G7 statement as he criticized Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau and called him "dishonest and weak". However, market reaction was mainly constrained to Canadian dollar, which weakened in early Asian trading hours post G7 Summit. Market will move forward to wait for the outcome of Trump-Kim summit tomorrow. China's official Global Times shows the optimism for the summit to yield a positive outcome. Elsewhere, China's trade surplus with most countries shrank but not with the US. The widening of surplus with the US may be distorted by the recent trade tension but may not bode well for the upcoming negotiation. The USTR is scheduled to unveil the list of Chinese imports to be taxed additional tariff on 15 June. For central banks, it is almost a done deal for the Fed to hike its interest rate for the second time this year. However, the key focus will be the dot charts as well as the terminal rate, where market will assess whether the Fed rate hike will be three or four times. The ECB meeting on Thursday will be important watch; note the comments from ECB officials last week hint that the ECB may start its discussion about the QE tapering this week. For today, look out for Malaysia's industrial production and a slew of manufacturing growth prints from Europe. For the week ahead, aside from central bank meetings, China's money supply growth would be particularly interesting as well.
SI	The Singapore government is reportedly spending about S$20 million to host this week's US-Pyongyang summit, with PM Lee adding that the contribution is made as "an international endeavour which is in our profound interest".
CN	The country's banking regulator and central bank issued a joint statement to improve its monitoring of deposit fluctuation. The new rule will increase the deviation in deposits on the final day of the month to 4% of a bank's monthly average deposit from previously 3%. In addition, the penalty for the banks to breach the deposit fluctuation requirement will be lowered. The recent fine-tune of deposit fluctuation rules is likely to alleviate bank's pressure to compete for deposits. On data, China's CPI rose by 1.8% in May, in line with market expectation. However, PPI beat market expectation and accelerated to 4.1% yoy in May. The higher than expected PPI shows that China's manufacturing activities remain resilient.
CMD	Commodity prices were largely range-bound with little change into the weekend, as market-watchers look on as the US-Pyongyang summit event tomorrow. Still, Brent oil futures staged a 1.1% fall, in tandem with WTI's decline of 0.32% as investors digested the sustained climb in oil rigs for the third consecutive week into 8th June. Elsewhere in Asia, crude palm oil futures declined for its fifth consecutive trading day into the second week of June, owing to (1) the rapid climb in early May given the uptick in seasonal demand amid (2) intensified concerns over US-Sino trade relationships which could see palm as a viable substitute for soybeans.

Major Market

- US: Wall Street rose Friday with the Dow Jones, S&P 500 and the Nasdaq composite adding 0.3%, 0.31% and 0.14%, respectively. However, post-G7 summit could inject further concern following further escalation of trade tensions between the US and its trading partners. Elsewhere, market-watchers wait in anticipation for the historic Trump-Kim summit tomorrow; with several major central banks such as the Fed, ECB and BoJ meeting for their respective policy meetings later this week. VIX advanced marginally up to 12.18 on Friday, compared to Thursday's 12.15. Meanwhile, the 2y US treasury yield rose 1bp to close up at 2.498%. Similarly, the 10y treasury yield added 2bps to end firmer at 2.946%.
- Singapore: The Straits Times Index slid 1.06% to close down at 3,436.37 on Friday as investors anticipated the outcome of the G7-summit. Hutchison Port Holdings Trust advanced 3.28% to emerge the top mover on Friday. Meanwhile, Yangzijiang Shipbuilding Holdings Ltd (-2.88%) and ComfortDelGro Corp Ltd (-2.44%) registered losses. The index may range trade today amid weak opening cues from Nikkei and Kospi despite Wall Street gains on Friday, coupled with market anticipation of the Trump-Kim summit tomorrow.
- Malaysia: Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad has commented on the Trans-Pacific Partnership, stating that "it is important to take into consideration the level of development of a country". He further elaborated by saying that "small, weaker economies must be given a chance to protect their products".
- Indonesia: Foreign reserves further declined to US$122.90bn in May (April 2018: US$124.90bn). According to BI, the reserve asset position was equivalent to financing 7.4 months of imports or 7.2 months of imports and servicing of government external debt, well above the international standard of reserve adequacy of 3 months of imports.

Bond Market Updates

- Market Commentary: The SGD swap curve flattened last Friday, with swap rates for the shorter tenors trading 2bps higher while the longer tenors traded 2bps lower. The Bloomberg Barclays Asia USD IG Bond Index average OAS widened by 1bps to 138bps and the Bloomberg Barclays Asia USD HY Bond Index average OAS tightened by 2bps to 453bps. 10Y UST yield fell 5bps to 2.89% around the opening of the European markets last Friday, as traders await for the outcome of the G7 summit, fretting about the growing trade tension between the US and its major allies on global economic growth. However, 10Y UST recovered 6bps by the end of the trading session to close at 2.95% on recovery of risk sentiments.
- New issues: There were no new issuances over 8 June 2018.
