BCIP Mechanics - General

9. How is the list of counters selected?

In the initial launch of BCIP, the share counters were shortlisted from the 30 companies which make up the Straits Times Index (STI), on the mainboard of the Singapore Exchange, and are traded on the Singapore stock exchange. The Nikko AM STI ETF is an ETF which is an Excluded Investment Product (EIP) with sufficient liquidity.

10. Will these counters be reviewed? Will new counters be added and existing counters be removed in future?

The constituents of the Straits Times Index (STI) are reviewed every half-yearly by FTSE Group (FTSE). Index reviews take place semi-annually in March and September. The list of counters available for purchase under BCIP will be reviewed if companies are added to, or removed from the STI based on the index reviews, and not based on performance. New BCIP counters outside of the STI may be added in the future.

11. Am I entitled to dividends under BCIP?

Yes, you will be entitled to dividends, whenever declared by the respective company or ETF.

12. How are dividends paid out?

If you use cash as your settlement mode:

Cash dividends will be credited to your designated OCBC deposit account you had used to purchase your existing share holdings. Stock dividend or bonus issues will be safe-kept with OCBC Securities Pte. Ltd, as appointed by OCBC Bank.

If you use SRS as your settlement mode:

Cash dividends will be credited to your designated OCBC SRS account. Stock dividend or bonus issues will be kept in an account in the name of OCBC Nominees Singapore Private Limited.

BCIP Mechanics – Purchase and Sale

13. How is the Average Purchase Price of the share determined?

On the Purchase Date, we aggregate the orders of all customers to purchase the shares. The Average Price is calculated by dividing the total cost of purchasing the shares by the total quantity of shares purchased. All customers who purchase the same share counter will be charged the same average purchase price.

14. How is the quantity of shares I am allocated determined?

The quantity of shares you are allocated is calculated by taking the investment amount you have indicated (less fees), divided by the average purchase price. The quantity will be rounded down to the nearest whole number.

If you use cash as your settlement mode:

We will credit the unutilised portion of the Gross Investment Amount after excluding the fees (i.e. the residual monies which was not utilised to purchase Securities) back to your GIRO-linked account.

If you use SRS as your settlement mode:

We will only debit an amount equivalent to the gross investment amount plus fees for the Securities actually purchased from the Customer's SRS account.

15. How is the Average Sale Price of the share determined?

On the Sale Date, we aggregate the orders of all customers who wish to sell the shares. The Average Sale Price is calculated by dividing the total proceeds from the shares sold by the total quantity of shares sold. All customers who sold the same share counter will be credited with proceeds using the same average sale price.

16. Do I need to wait and accumulate a full lot size of 100 shares before I can sell off my shares accumulated under the BCIP?

No, you don't have to. With the BCIP, you have the flexibility of selling off odd lots of shares on the unit share market. You may sell any quantity of shares which are accumulated through the BCIP.

However, you should consider accumulating your shareholdings to a full lot size before selling them, instead of timing the market. This is because when you sell off odd quantity of shares that are not in standard lot sizes, you may not get a price that is as competitive as a full lot size due to lack of liquidity. Also, the fees applicable to sell orders are on a per transaction basis, so it may make sense to accumulate your shareholdings to a reasonable size before selling.

17. What is a "buy-in" and why does it happen?

When you sell more shares than you own (known as a "short-sell"), SGX may conduct a "buy-in" to ensure that the quantity that was short-sold is covered. When a "buy-in" occurs, you will be liable for any losses and charges in relation to the buy-in.

BCIP Payment

18. When will my funds be deducted from my account?

If you are investing using your OCBC deposit account, GIRO deduction occurs on the 17th of every month. If it happens to be on a non-business day, the deduction will be carried out on the preceding business day. You will have to ensure sufficient funds in your account two business days before the GIRO deduction date.

If you are investing using your OCBC SRS account, deduction of funds occurs three business days from the purchase execution date. If deduction of funds from your OCBC SRS account fails, we will deduct the funds from the OCBC deposit account indicated in your application. If the deduction is also unsuccessful, a force-sale on the securities may be performed.

19. Why do I need to ensure that there are sufficient funds in my account two business days before the GIRO deduction date?

Ensuring sufficient funds in your account before the actual GIRO deduction date facilitates the successful GIRO deduction for your monthly purchase. If your account is not funded in time, it may lead to an unsuccessful deduction, and your purchase instruction for the particular securities will be terminated upon three such consecutive unsuccessful payments.

BCIP Custody of Shares

20. Do I need to open a securities trading account or Central Depository (CDP) account to safe keep my shares?
